

Ideal Health IT Launches Recruiting Campaign

San Diego, CA – Aug 24, 2010 – Healthcare consulting services company Ideal Health IT, Inc. launches aggressive recruiting campaign. Health IT is the hottest consulting career around. Healthcare organization resourcing needs are soaring with the many clinical implementation programs that are currently and soon-to-be underway. Government-driven initiatives, principally ARRA/HITECH, are affecting the IT priorities of nearly every healthcare organization, both large and small. Ideal Health IT is recruiting for experienced health IT consultants to be a part of our growing team in support of these key projects.

“Ideal Health IT was formed in 2009 and began operations earlier this year in the US marketplace as a logical expansion of our extremely successful consulting, staffing and training organization in the United Kingdom” said John Brimble, President of Ideal Health IT, Inc. “We have strong competencies in health IT systems planning, implementation and training. As an organization, we have established robust best practices and structured methodologies to deliver predictably and reliably for our clients.”

“The reality is we need as many capable, experienced consultants as possible to support the demand in this rapidly growing industry”, he continued. “We need consultants with functional experience, clinical informatics experience and project management experience. We hire under a mixed-use model of employees and contractors and work closely with all of our consultants to pursue the best alignment between their individual career goals and the needs of our clients.”

Ideal Health IT is planning to add as many as 100 consultants over the next 6 to 12 months. While qualified resources are needed nationwide, the immediate requirements are on the west coast. Consultants may be based in any major city in the western US and should expect extensive regional travel. Experience with major health IT systems vendors is required, as is previous experience working with hospitals, health systems or physician practices.
