Health IT Training Services

Healthcare organizations are faced with the daunting task of enterprise health IT systems adoption. These large scale programs not only touch every facet of the organization, the organization itself is often changing as a result. Roles are changing, sometimes dramatically, and the extended enterprise is becoming integrated. This leads to a tremendous need for training. As roles are changing, so are the needs of the individual. Training for these new roles is seen as an ongoing program that can respond to the evolving needs of the user and the organization. Defining user competency needs and delivering the training accordingly helps build organization knowledge and capacity while also developing the individual.

Ideal Health IT delivers exclusively into the healthcare industry to serve your needs. We recruit skilled training professionals and complement their own deep industry and functional experience with our proven proprietary best practices. Our consultants work with you to understand your organizational needs and deliver health IT training services that build organizational knowledge and capacity that meets those needs. Ideal Health IT Training Services include:

- Application & function-specific training
- Customized curriculum development
- Managed training & competency programs
- Go-live training & support
- On-site mentoring
